Shavuot Shiur: Shechinah – The evolution (and meaning) of a different idea of God

9:00-10:00

Shavuot presents a particular understanding of God as awesome speaker of Torah, commanding figure. But this is not the only possible metaphor we can use. Judaism is full of different ways of thinking and speaking about God and sanctity. Join Rabbi Josh as we trace the development of a very different type of God language in our tradition, and think about how it might help us in our Jewish lives.

Alyth Film Club: Solomon and Gaenor

Tuesday 9 May, 19:30-22:00

Set in the Welsh mining valleys in the 1900s, Gaenor, born into a family of strict chapel-goers, falls for Solomon, a young door-to-door salesman, who conceals his Jewish identity from her and her family. The couple, from similar yet very distinctive worlds, fall helplessly in love. The odds are against them, however, as the outraged community in which they live conspires to destroy their fragile happiness.

Shabbat Shiurim

Torah Shiur from the Zohar

Saturday 13 May, 9:15-10:15

Join Rabbi Mark to study Kabbalistic understandings of our Torah portion for the week, Emor, which is the fullest festival calendar in the Torah. Learn how our Shavuot customs developed through Kabbalistic ideas.

The First Hebrew Shakespeare Translations

Saturday 27 May, 9:15-10:15

In this shiur, Alyth member Dr Lily Kahn, Reader in Hebrew and Jewish Languages at UCL, will share from her research into the earliest translations of Shakespeare plays into Hebrew - Isaac Edward Salkinson's "Ithiel the Cushite of Veice" (Othello, Vienna, 1874) and "Ram and Jael" (Romeo and Juliet, Vienna, 1878). Salkinson's work offers a fascinating and unique perspective on global Shakespeare. Differing significantly from the original English, the translations are replete with biblical, rabbinic, and medieval Hebrew textual references and reflect a profoundly Jewish religious and cultural setting. Lily will illustrate her talk with PowerPoint images from the works.

Alyth Israel Trip 2017

We wish n'siah tova to all the participants on the Alyth trip to Israel starting on Wednesday 10 May. We look forward to them sharing their experiences, including: the challenges of Progressive Judaism in Israel, new and creative Jewish art, different ways of singing and praying, exciting models of study, meeting Settlers and Palestinians in the West Bank, the lives of Israeli Arabs, the realities of Israeli society, the perspectives of Knesset members and more!
