Entering the Omer: The Perils of Pairs in the House of Study

Blessing for Study

בָּרוּךְ אַתָּה יְיָ אֱלֹהֵינוּ מֶלֶךְ הָעוֹלָם, אֲשֶׁר קִדְשָׁנוּ בְּמִצְוֹתִיו, וְצִנָּנוּ לַעֲסוֹק בְּדִבְרֵי תוֹרָה.

Blessed are You, our Living God, Sovereign of the universe, whose commandments make us holy, and who commands us to devote ourselves to the study of Torah.

Baruch Atah Adonai, Eloheynu Melech ha-olam, asher kidshanu b'mitzvotav, v'tzivanu la-asok b'divrey Torah.

Babylonian Talmud, Yevamot 62b

They said: Rabbi Akiva had twelve thousand pairs of students, from G'vat to Antipatris, and they all died in one period because they did not treat each other with respect.

אָמְרוּ: שְׁנֵים עָשָּׂר אָלֶף זוּגִים תַּלְמִידִים הָיוּ לוֹ לְרַבִּי עֲקִיבָא מִגְּבָת עַד אַנְטִיפְּרַס, וְכוּלָן מֵתוּ בְּפֶּרֶק אֶחָד, מִפְּנֵי שֶׁלֹא נָהַגוּ כָּבוֹד זֶה לְזֶה.

Babylonian Talmud, Kiddushin 29b

Our rabbis taught [in a baraita], if he [the father] studies and his son studies, he takes precedence over his son. Rabbi Yehudah says, if his son is swift to learn and bright, and his learning endures, his son takes precedence.

This is like Rav Ya'akov son of Rav Acha bar Ya'akov,<sup>3</sup> who was sent by his father to study with Abbaye. When he came home, [his father] saw that his [the son's] learning was not sharpened. He said to him, 'I am preferable to you. You sit, and I will go.'

Abbaye<sup>4</sup> heard that he [Rav Acha bar Ya'akov, the father] was coming. There was a certain demon Abbaye's house of study. When they went in in pairs even during the day, they were injured. He [Abbaye] said to them [his students]: don't let anyone offer him lodgings, maybe a miracle can be brought about.

He [Rav Acha bar Ya'akov] went in, spent the night in that house of study. It appeared to him as the likeness of a serpent with seven heads. Each time he bowed, one of its heads dropped off. He said to them: if a miracle had not occurred, you would have endangered me.

תָּנוּ רַבָּנַן: הוּא לִלְמוֹד וּבְנוֹ לִלְמוֹד – הוּא קוֹדֵם לִבְנוֹ. רַבִּי יְהוּדָה אוֹמֵר: אָם בְּנוֹ זָרִיז וּמְמוּלָח וְתַלְמוּדוֹ מִתְקַיֵּים בְּיָדוֹ – בְּנוֹ קוֹדְמוֹ.

Abbaye was one of the pre-eminent sages in Babylonia in the late 3rd and early 4th centuries CE.

Babylonian Talmud, Brachot 28b

Mishnah: Rabbi Nechunya ben Hakanah<sup>5</sup> used to pray a short prayer upon entering and leaving the Study Hall. They said to him, 'What is the place/ purpose of this prayer?'

He said to them, 'When I enter, I pray that a snare shall not come about because of me, and when I go out, I give thanks for my portion.'

Gemara: Our rabbis taught [in a baraita]: When he entered, what did he say? 'May it be Your will, Eternal my God, that no snare should come about because of me, and that I should not stumble in a matter of halachah, that my colleagues shall rejoice in me, that I should not declare that which is impure, pure. That my colleagues shall not stumble in a matter of halachah, and that I shall rejoice in them.' And on his way out, what did he say? I give thanks before you, Eternal my God, that you placed my portion among those who sit in the Study Hall, and you did not place my portion amongst those who sit in corners. For I rise early, and they rise early. I rise for the words of Torah, and they rise for empty words. I labour and they labour. I labour and receive a reward; they labour and receive no reward. I run and they run. I run after eternal life, and they run to the pit of destruction.'

Our rabbis taught [in a Baraita]: When Rabbi Eliezer<sup>6</sup> became ill, his students went in to visit him. They said to him, 'our master, teach us the ways of life, so that we will merit though them eternal life.' He said to them, 'take care over the honour of your fellows, prevent your children from deep thinking,<sup>7</sup> sit them between the knees of Torah scholars, and when you pray, know before whom you stand. For these actions' sake, you will merit life in the world to come.'

&lt;sup>5</sup> Rabbi Nechunya ben Hakanah was a very early rabbi, in the first generation of sages that included the schools of Hillel and Shammai. As well as being a rabbi, some kabbalistic literature is attributed to him.

&lt;sup>6</sup> Rabbi Eliezer (ben Hyrcanus) was one of the preeminent rabbis in the Land of Israel in the late first and early second centuries CE. There are many mystical traditions associated with him, and this story is one of the most detailed accounts we have of his life.

Jerusalem Talmud, Brachot 4:2

Halachah: When he entered, what did he say? 'May it be Your will, Eternal my God, and God of my ancestors, that I should not be offended by my fellows, and my fellow will not be offended by me; that we should not declare impure that which is pure, nor declare pure that which is impure; that we should not forbid that which is permitted, nor permit that which is forbidden; and that I would be found to be embarrassed in this world, and in the world to come.' And on his way out, what did he say? 'I give thanks before You, Eternal my God and God of my ancestors, that you placed my portion among those who sit in the Study Hall and in Synagogues, and you did not place my portion in the theatres and circuses. I labour and they labour. I am diligent and they are diligent. I labour to inherit the Garden of Eden; they labour for the pit of destruction, as it is written, "For You will not forsake my soul to Sheol, you will not allow Your righteous ones to see the pit" (Psalm 16:10).'

Rabbi Pedat<sup>8</sup> [said] in the name of Rabbi Ya'akov bar Idi,<sup>9</sup> 'Rabbi Eleazar<sup>10</sup> used to pray three prayers. What did he say after his prayer? "May it be Your will, Eternal my God, and God of my ancestors, that no one should come to hate us in their hearts, nor should we hate anyone in our hearts; that no one should be jealous of us in their hearts, nor should we be jealous of anyone in our hearts. May Your Torah be our work all the days of our lives, may our words be supplications before You."

Rabbi Chayya bar Abba<sup>11</sup> added, 'Make our hearts singular in fear of Your name, and remove us from all You hate, and bring us near to all You love, and do for us tzedakah for the sake of Your name.

Babylonian Talmud, Pesachim 110b

In the west [i.e. in the Land of Israel], they were not particular about pairs. Rav Dimi<sup>12</sup> from Nehardea<sup>13</sup> was particular, even with regard to signs on a barrel. There was an incident [in which two signs were written on a barrel] and the barrel burst. The rule of the matter is: all who are particular [about pairs, they] are particular about them; all who are not particular, they are not particular with them. But, one is required to be concerned.

When Rav Dimi came, he said, '[Regarding] two eggs, two nuts, two cucumbers, and another matter – [there is] a halachah to Moses from Sinai.' But the Rabbis were uncertain about the other matter, and so they declared regarding all pairs because of the other matter.

&lt;sup>12</sup> There are several Rav Dimis cited in the Talmud, but this is likely to be the fourth century sage who commonly went backwards and forwards between Babylonia and the Land of Israel, since here he is transmitting a teaching from the Land of Israel.

Gesher tsar m'od

Words: Nachman of Bratslav, Likutei Moharan Part 2, 48:2 Music: Baruch Chait

ּ וְדַע, שֶׁהָאָדָם צָרִיךְ לַעֲבֹר עַל גָשֶׁר צַר מְאֹד מְאֹד, וְהַכְּלָל וְהָעָקֶר – שֶׁלֹא יִתְפַּחֵד כְּלָל

Know, a person needs to cross a very, very narrow bridge. The main rule is: Do not be afraid at all.

Kol ha-olam kullo gesher tsar m'od, v'ha-ikkar lo l'facheid k'lal.

All the world is a very narrow bridge; but the main thing to recall is to have no fear at all.
